This summer I got the chance to help out with Vacation Bible School again. I was very excited about working but also nervous since I get a little impatient with kids. I prayed that God would give me a lot of patience for those couple days. Day two I found myself getting impatient. One of the kids in my group told me, "Asia don't stress. We can be difficult but we'll listen eventually, and we're learning something." I realized it's not always what happens at the exact moment that matters but being patient and waiting counts not just with kids but with what God plans. Sometimes it's the words of a child that grow your faith.

~ Asia Watson

A special thanks to everyone that sent cards, thoughts and prayers in the passing of my sister. Your kindness was greatly appreciated.
